DELS

The compact, all-in-one lifting station

DELS is an external lifting station for handling untreated waste water, for use when the sewage system cannot be reached under gravity alone.

It is ideal for domestic and residential applications, such as basements or garages, for small commercial activities (small offices) and for underground or confined spaces in general.

Compact and durable For residential and commercial applications

Compact and fully integrated, it's ideal for domestic and residential applications, like basements or garages. It's also suited to light commercial use or tight spaces in general.

Cooled motor

The quiet-running water-cooled motor ensures the system offers consistently reliable service, even when operating for extended periods or with challenging workloads.
